DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which the subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sokoloff [US 6,567,677] in view of Lookofsky [US 5,416,730].

Regarding claims 1-3 and 7-8, Sokoloff discloses a housing assembly for an electronic device (figures 3a-3d), comprising:

- a base housing (200) having a pivot side and an inner operating surface (display, 130);
- a pivot housing (100) connected pivotally to the pivot side of the base housing (figure 3c) and having an outer operating surface (keyboard, 135), and an inner surface opposite to the outer operating surface, the pivot housing being rotatable relative to the base housing about a first axis (figures 3c-3d) such that the pivot housing is operable so as to move from a closed position, where the inner surface of the pivot housing is disposed to confront the inner operating surface of the base housing, to an open position, where the inner surface of the pivot housing is spaced apart from the inner operating surface of the base housing (figure 3c); and

- a rotatable main housing (106) disposed adjacent to the base housing and the pivot housing and connected rotatably to the pivot housing (figure 3c), the main housing being rotatable relative to the pivot housing about a second axis parallel to the first axis when the pivot housing is disposed in the open position (figures 3c-3d).

Sokoloff discloses everything claimed except the specific arrangement of the operating surfaces.

Lookofsky discloses an electronic device having a plurality of pivotable housings supporting operating surface (figure 1).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made that the arrangement of the operating surfaces of Sokoloff could have been modified relative to each other, as suggested by Lookofsky, in order to accommodate various functions and application.

Regarding claim 4, Sokoloff discloses a speaker (105) being mounted on the housing assembly (figure 3c-3d).

Regarding claim 5, Sokoloff discloses a microphone being mounted on the housing assembly (abstract).

Regarding claim 6, Sokoloff discloses a camera (140) being mounted on the housing assembly.

Regarding claims 9-10, Sokoloff discloses the pivot housing has a first side connected pivotally to the pivot side of the base housing, and a second side transverse to the first side, the main housing being connected rotatably to the second side of the pivot housing and the second axis is disposed at a center of the second side (figures 3c and 3d).

Regarding claim 11, Sokoloff discloses the main housing has a third side parallel to the pivot side of the base housing and transverse to the second side of the pivot housing, the pivot side of the base housing having a length equal to sum of a length of the third side of the main housing and that of the first side of the pivot housing (figures 3c-3d).

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure:

- Karidis [US 5,926,364] discloses a trifold personal computer with touchpad and keyboard; and
- Bowen [US 5,644,338] discloses ergonomic laptop computer and ergonomic keyboard.
